Japs Open Offensive Drive in New Guinea Near Moresby

(By The Associated Press)
Tokyo's Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo took over the foreign ministry today, tightening control of Japanese war policy and dropping the diplomat who negotiated the Tokyo-Moscow neutrality pact.

A Japanese broadcast said Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo, former ambassador to Russia and Germany, resigned.

As foreign minister, Togo had repeatedly affirmed Japan's pledge of friendship with Russia, but it was not immediately clear whether his resignation meant a change in Tokyo's attitude, possibly as a prelude to an attack on Soviet Siberia.

Recent Chinese and London dispatches stressed Japan's intention to invade Siberia this fall, presumably at the height of Adolf Hitler's campaign against Russia in the west, and upwards of 500,000 Japanese troops have been reported massing in Manchukuo along the Siberian frontier.

Observers also pointed out that Japan's mysterious withdrawals from east China in the last few weeks indicated that her leaders were preparing for new military ventures elsewhere in the Far Pacific war theatre.

British diplomatic circles in London said it was "quite possible" that Togo's removal reflected dissatisfaction over the conduct of the war, resulting from United Nations victories in the Solomon Islands and at Milne Bay, New Guinea.

POWERS IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Hershey Gives New Plan With Burden On Unmarried Men

State Boards Should Put Calls on Areas Where Single Men Are Predominant

Washington, Sept. 1 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey today instructed state selective service directors to arrange induction calls so that married men would not be drafted in some localities while single men were still uncalled in others.

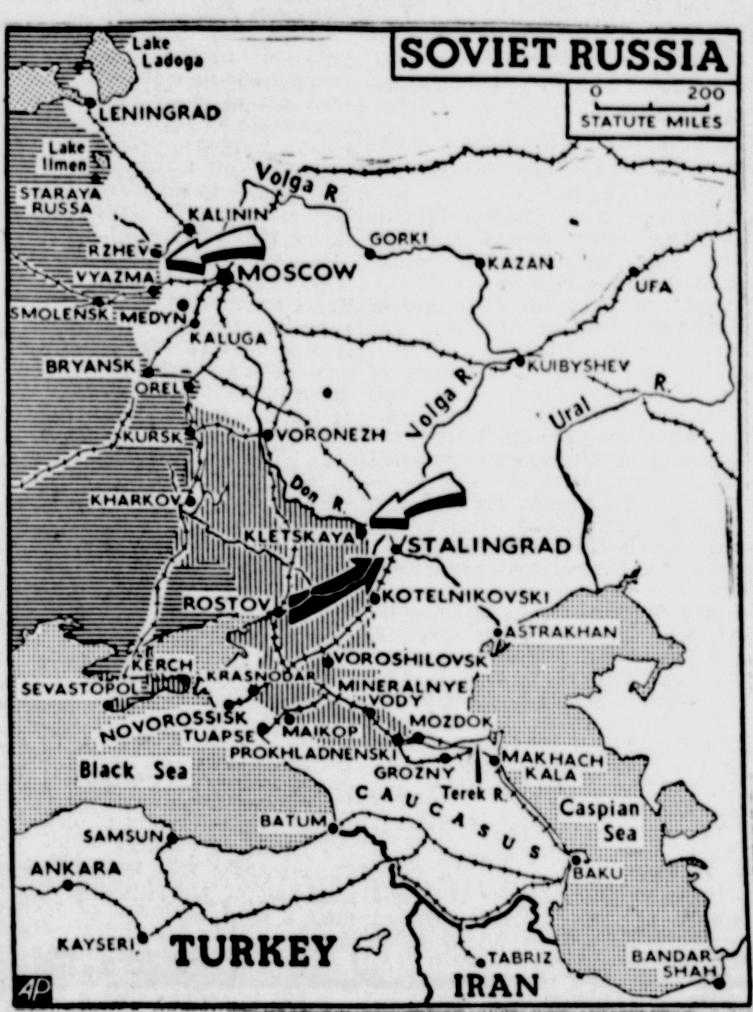

The selective service director said state officials should arrange their calls on local boards "so as to place the heaviest load right now on boards having the most single men, or men with collateral dependents only."

Hershey's memorandum to state directors also instructed local boards to complete by October 16 the initial classification of all registrants.

This speed-up must be made, he said, because "the serious military situation" requires that the selective service system be prepared to fill calls in 1943 which "will be equal to or in excess of the monthly calls made in August, September, and October of this year."

This procedure, Hershey added, will tend to level off inductions with "the ultimate objective of calling men from the small town and from the city on an approximately uniform basis."

Key Battlefields in Russia

This map, with shaded area indicating territory held by Germany, locates the key battlefields around Stalingrad and Rzhev. Black arrow shows direction of main Nazi drive on Stalingrad, where stiffened Russian resistance was reported to have checked the force of the German push. White arrow at top indicates Russian counter-drive to west of Moscow. Vertical shading shows territory taken by Nazis in southern drive into Caucasus this year.

Fire District Is Voted in Hurley

Board Gives Unanimous Consent to Petition From Taxpayers

The Hurley Town Board at a well-attended meeting last night at the Hurley Town Hall unanimously adopted a resolution creating a fire district for Election District No. 2.

The meeting, which was a public hearing on a petition presented August 29 to the town board, brought no opposition.

J. Ellis Briggs, a director of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, was present and hailed the action of the Hurley officials as closing the chain of county townships providing fire protection.

Irish Explosives Dump Uncovered In Belfast Region

U. S. Troops Are Ordered Off Streets as Plot Is Suspected Against Americans

Belfast, Sept. 1 (AP)—Police declared today that a great arms and explosives dump captured near here Sunday night was to have been used by the outlawed Irish Republican army in armed attacks on United States and British forces in Northern Ireland.

A police statement said the special manifesto issued by the I.R.A. calling the presence of United States forces in Northern Ireland an act of aggression made it clear that "this illegal organization has been preparing for attacks on members of the armed forces of the crown, police and United States forces stationed in Northern Ireland."

Police said 17 persons had been detained for questioning and all available officers concentrated on investigation of a plot which, they said, had reached a point where the organization was able to amass explosives enough to wreck half this Ulster capital.

United States troops have been ordered to stay off the streets of Belfast tomorrow, it was announced officially today as tension mounted with a report that the outlawed Irish Republican army was planning attacks on American and British troops in Northern Ireland.

One man armed with a tommy-gun was killed when the arsenal was uncovered yesterday in a raid on a farm five miles from this city. Authorities said they suspected that he was an important member of the outlawed Irish Republican army.

All police leaves were cancelled amid a situation growing more tense as the hour approached for the scheduled hanging tomorrow of Thomas J. Williams, 19-year-old I.R.A. member, for the slaying of a policeman last Easter morning.

New Hurley Man Held in Slaying Man and Woman

Killings Took Place Friday, Police Say, in Isolated Farmhouse Near Gardiner; Man Is Arraigned by County Judge Conway

Patrick H. Powers 66, of New Hurley, arrested yesterday afternoon after a gun battle with officers who sought him on a double-murder charge was arraigned before County Judge J. Edward Conway this afternoon and was held for the grand jury on a first degree murder charge.

Powers was arraigned upon information sworn to by Trooper Lynn Baker of B. C. I. presented to Judge Conway as the committing magistrate. He waived examination on the specific charge of first degree murder which charged him only with the murder of Bridget Neff, his sister.

The double killing took place at a farmhouse at the end of a lane leading from a crossroad and near the road extending from Forest Glen to Gardiner. It was followed by a battle yesterday in which Powers attempted to hold off state troopers and sheriff's deputies.

Powers, three days before his arrest had killed Joseph Neff, 69, and his wife, Mrs. Bridget Neff, 70, who had been spending the summer at the farm. Their home address was given as 336 Sherman avenue, White Plains.

Powers, the officials said, gave himself up and was arrested about 6:45 o'clock last evening after holding out against officers through most of the day. He had been armed with the same shotgun with which he had killed Mr. and Mrs. Neff, the officers said.

Formerly Owned House
The officers said also they learned that Powers was a brother of Mrs. Neff and he had been a former owner of the farmhouse.

Powers was brought to the court house, where he was booked on a technical charge of manslaughter in the first degree. He was in no shape to be questioned last night after standing a siege of several hours in a house that had been so filled with tear and sickening gas that, in the words of one of the troopers, the house looked as if it was on fire.

Sheriff Anderson said this morning that Powers' son, Irving, with whom he makes his home in New Hurley, told him that when he went to the farmhouse Monday morning and called to his father to get his things together and come on home, before the folks got back, that Powers replied, "They are not coming back. He is said to have told Irving that the folks were in the cellar and that he was not coming out of the house alive. He said he was 'going to let the officers shoot him.'"

Allied Bombers Roar Into Action to Offset Nazi Thrusts

(By The Associated Press)
United States land forces and planes were reported in action in the new battle of Egypt today as Adolf Hitler's invasion armies started the fourth year of World War II by punching out in a major offensive toward the Nile and by hurling masses of reinforcements into the bloody struggle for Stalingrad.

By ROGER D. GREENE (Associated Press War Editor)

Adolf Hitler's invasion armies started the fourth year of World War II today by hurling masses of reinforcements into the bloody battle of Stalingrad and punching out in an apparently major new offensive in Egypt.

Soviet dispatches said the Germans were moving up tremendous new forces of men and machines to bolster Gen. Fedor von Bock's two-month-old onslaught against Stalingrad, but Red Army headquarters announced at noon:

"During the night of August 31-September 1, no significant changes took place at the front."

Blistering heat, so intense that candles melted in dugouts at night, beat down on the sun-parched steppes, and dispatches said the only relief found by soldiers was in the shadows cast by smoke rising from the battlefield.

In quest of water, Russian and German troops were reported fighting bitterly for a well located in no-man's-land.

In Egypt, British imperial headquarters reported that heavy fighting raged all-day yesterday in the southern sector of the 35-mile-long El Alamein front, 80 miles west of Alexandria, after Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel sent "strong columns" into the attack.

A Reuters dispatch from Cairo said Axis columns knifing into the southern El Alamein-Qattara line had advanced about eight miles through British minefields.

An attack on the British center was contained, however. Advances reaching London said Rommel had perhaps 141,000 combat troops to throw into his new onslaught toward the Suez Canal and the green valley of the Nile.

Informed London quarters declare there was no doubt the German leader has opened a big-scale offensive, synchronized with the great battles of southern Russia and aimed at an eventual junction of Axis forces in the Middle East.

Italian field headquarters, issuing its shortest communique in months, asserted that Axis troops had taken "many prisoners" in fighting between advanced forces.

Allied bombers swarmed over the desert battlefield during the night, dispatches said, pounding Axis motorized concentrations in "heavy and successful raids."

Front-line dispatches said the thunder of tank, artillery and infantry fighting rolled across the sands as Marshal Rommel's armored columns struck out just north of the desolate Qattara depression, Egypt's "Death Valley," near the 200-foot El Himeimat Peak.

Breaking a two-month deadlock, the Axis armies "were immediately engaged by our light forces and fighting is proceeding," the British command announced.

Tanks Are Ready
New American tanks with American repair crews stood ready to combat the new drive, and United States bombers helped support Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's defense armies.

Possibility of Meat Rationing in Four Months Forecast; Conservation Planned

Washington, Sept. 1 (AP)—Americans will be asked by the government soon to forego the extra steaks and chops they are able to buy with their record-breaking pay envelopes, and in about four months all meat will be rationed.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard announced last night that the food requirements committee had decided on rationing as the best method of assuring an equitable distribution of what he termed the largest livestock production in history.

Meanwhile, a conservation campaign, possibly including "meatless days," will be instituted to limit civilian consumption of red meats to about the same average amount as has been eaten per capita during the last 10 years.

Shipyards Destroyed

London, Sept. 1 (AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said today that the big Marma Shipyards at Soederhamn was destroyed last night in one of the worst fires in Sweden in several years.

Secret Session Planned

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 1 (AP)—The Australian government agreed today to a secret sitting of both houses of the Federal Parliament this week to discuss the war situation.

Milk Regulation System in State Shows Progress

The New York federal-state milk marketing orders, entering today the fifth year of pooling the output of nearly 60,000 approved dairy farms in the six states of the metropolitan milkshed have priced 20,030,010,386 pounds of milk since September 1, for a net farm-yield of $452,685,464.90.

Reviewing the career of federal and state joint regulation, N. J. Cladakis, administrator of the orders, reported today that dairy farmers have collected a weighted average uniform price of $2.13 1/4 a hundredweight from the New York pool.

"The fourth anniversary of the New York orders," Mr. Cladakis said, "is a good point at which to report accomplishments even though some of the figures are unwieldy. It should be noted that the orders have functioned for only 43 months, instead of 48, because an adverse court decision early in 1939 resulted in their suspension."

"Total figures for the 43 months were gained by using our estimate that the current August pool will contain 458,000,000 pounds and will produce a uniform price of $2.72."

"Dairymen who have shared in the New York pools have ranged in number from 57,232 in July of this year to a peak of 61,442 in August, 1939. There were 59,571 in the first pool, September, 1938. The number of plants to which they delivered was at the high point of 496 in December 1940, and dropped to 478 in July, 1942. "The milk that has flowed into 43 pools has cost the handlers a total of $496,440,553.74 and returned a net farm value of $452,685,464.90 adjusted to the freight zones of actual delivery. The difference between the sums, aside from approximately $25,000 that is being carried in the producer revolving fund, represents deductions for cooperative and diversion payments. Diversion payments have cost $12,814,626.12 and cooperative payments, $3,916,429.40.

Charles Eng Has Close Call in Holdup Attempt

Charles Eng of the Shanghai Loo restaurant on Wall street had an experience with the "muggers" who have been so much in the limelight in New York recently, when he was held up on 48th street about 11 o'clock Sunday night.

Charley was standing a short distance from Eighth avenue on 48th street, waiting for a friend to finish work and join him, when he was approached by three Negroes, well dressed young men, who forced him into the entrance of a building nearby.

Two of the party stood in the doorway while the third pressed a large knife against Charley's breast and told him to hand over his valuables.

Just then, as Charley was digging into his pockets for what money he had on his person, a big man, who was accompanied by a woman, passed by. The man, noticing the hold-up, cried out, "What is going on here?"

The Negro with the knife heard the remark and turned and then the three bandits beat it, running up Eighth avenue.

Shortly afterward an officer appeared and after getting a description of Charley's assailants took after them. Whether or not the trio were captured Charley didn't learn as the subsequent proceedings didn't interest him.

He voiced the opinion last night that the streets of New York, especially in the more lonely sections, are chancy places to be walking alone these times.

HOME BUREAU

Lake Katrine Unit

The Home Bureau Rally which was scheduled for September 3 has been postponed until September 11, at the home of Mrs. Milnor Travis. There has been no change in committees. Everyone wishing to join or renew membership is asked to attend. There will be a covered dish luncheon.

All those who are planning to attend are asked to notify Mrs. Audrey C. Roosa.

Leaders Confer

Conforming with the special conservation program this year of the Home Bureau, leaders met today at the Municipal Auditorium and the Legion building in the first unified meeting of the county's organization. In previous years leaders from the county clubs would attend separate sessions throughout the month each dealing with some topic of the year's program. However, this year, all of the leaders came to Kingston on one day when all topics are discussed in separate classes.

At the meeting today approximately 78 women attended for the training classes. These leaders will take the information back to their own groups where the program of conserving will be conducted. This 1942-1943 program might well be entitled "Make the Most of What You Have" for topics discussed today dealt with the conservation of food and materials and the use of substitutes.

The Foods and Nutrition classes under the direction of Miss Therese Wood studied the conservation of foods from the garden, the place of vitamins, use of fats and substitutes. All the work in this field of nutrition was toward dynamic health at the lowest possible cost. In connection with the preparation of food, Miss Gertrude Henry developed the theme of conservation of utensils.

Dr. Alice Rost in the health division of the training school led the topic of Signs of Emotional Maturing. Recreation and games were conducted by Mrs. Clarence L. Dunn, Miss Mary Collins and Miss Ann Netter, whose special topic was "Conditioning Is Fun" and groups singing and games were led by Mrs. Raymond Rignall and Raymond Hyland.

During the noon hour a special talk was given for the group by James Simpson, director of Civilian Protection. He stressed the point that homemakers as well as the fighting men and industrial laborers were important in successfully conducting the war. Speeches were also given by Mrs. H. M. Eppes, county chairman, and from the Sophia and Josiah mock rock skit. Singing was led by Mrs. Rignall and Raymond Hyland. The leaders brought box lunches and were provided with coffee and dessert at the Auditorium.

Other joint training schools will be held throughout the year when topics of care of clothing and materials in the home will be considered in addition to the nutrition and health problems in connection with the war program.

Woman's Body Found

Seymour, Conn., Sept. 1 (AP)—The body of an unidentified woman, whom state police believe may have been a victim of foul play, was found today in heavy brush near the Seymour-Ansonia highway by two mushroom hunters. Inspector William Schatzman said an investigation disclosed that the skull had been shattered over the left eye. From the condition of the body, and tattered clothing, Schatzman said it may have been exposed to the weather at least since last winter.

New Yorkers Warned To Get Move on Now

New York, Sept. 1 (AP)—Anticipating one of the greatest moving rushes in years and faced with an acute shortage of skilled moving men, warehousemen and movers warned New Yorkers today that unless they plan to stay put they had better get a move on now.

"We are trying to urge people to avoid the rush at the last minute," one moving man said. "If they don't, they won't get moved. We won't be able to get the men and orders are running 50 per cent ahead of the same period last year."

The annual business of moving New Yorkers around October 1st is further complicated, it was said, by the fact that warehouses in the city are "90 per cent full." This congestion is caused by men going into the army, families "doubling up" and the removal of many to other cities to take defense jobs.

had deepened a wedge toward Stalingrad from the southwest. The Russian command said at least 48 German tanks were destroyed and 2,000 Nazis killed.

In the Caucasus, the Germans declared Rumanian troops had captured the Black Sea port of Anapa, near the Kerch straits across from the Crimea, 30 miles north of the Russian naval base at Novorossisk. The Red fleet abandoned the base several weeks ago.

Dispatches to Pravda said German naval parties were attempting to raid the western Caucasus coast, but said the attacks were being crushed while Soviet gunboats, torpedoed and planes blasted Nazi-held ports from which the salies were apparently being made.

Russian Cossacks were credited with wiping out 200 German paratroopers south of Krasnodar and recapturing a populated point in a stiffening defense of the western Caucasus.

Far to the south, Soviet dispatches reported, Russian troops dispersed and partly annihilated a German force which attempted to cross a river in the Prokhladenski sector in the central Caucasus, where the Germans have been stalled for days in their drive toward the Grozny oil fields.

Economy Is Asked On Tea and Coffee

Ithaca—War time demands call for economy measures on the coffee supply. Both coffee and tea are becoming scarce because of shipping difficulties. Here are some suggestions from the New York State College of Home Economics for making your coffee ration last for more days.

Buy fresh coffee often and have it ground at the store. Keep it in a can covered with a tight lid and stand it in a cool place. Coffee that is ground fine for a drip pot can be used in many percolators.

Make coffee by measuring both the water and the coffee accurately. Use a level tablespoon of coffee to a half a pint of water. Do not waste coffee by making a large potful when only a cup or two is needed.

Check on the number of times coffee is served daily in the family. Either cut down on the number of times it is made or put it in smaller cups. Do not serve coffee to children.

Togo Speculation Centers on Policy Regarding Russia

Resignation of Foreign Minister May Mean He's Opposed to Shift Regarding Reds

(The following was written by a member of the former Associated Press Bureau in Berlin when, in the late thirties, Shigenori Togo, who resigned yesterday as foreign minister of Japan, prepared the diplomatic groundwork for Japan's military cooperation with the Rome-Berlin Axis.)

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

New York, Sept. 1 (AP)—Shigenori Togo, who has resigned as foreign minister of Japan, was known to diplomatic colleagues as the man who managed to avoid a break with Russia in the diplomatic tensions of 1938 and 1939.

That reputation now highlights his unexplained withdrawal from high Japanese diplomacy.

Speculation as to the reason for his leaving the cabinet at a moment when important diplomatic and military decisions seemed to be pending in Tokyo naturally centers on his policies respecting Russia, and his relation to the European Axis.

There may be a significant relationship in the fact that Togo stepped out at a time when Japan's military decisions seemed to be pending in Tokyo naturally centers on his policies respecting Russia, and his relation to the European Axis.

Mr. Hayson read Mrs. Ellsworth's favorite hymn, "Wonderful Savior is Jesus My Lord," her favorite poem, "Others," and several of her chosen Scripture verses. He spoke of the sincere, faithful, untiring service Mrs. Ellsworth had given, proofs of the true Christian character she had. Dr. Seeley paid a warm tribute to her life. From the time when she came to live with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Lawrence, from Accord to St. Remy, she was associated with the service in the church and Sunday school. It began with organ service and this was continued for 47 years, until ill health compelled her to discontinue a few months ago. With skilled hand and with beautiful voice she made a large contribution to the service in the church. Mrs. Ellsworth is survived by her husband and their daughter, Beatrice, and Mr. Ellsworth's mother, Mrs. Almira Ellsworth, and by a host of friends. Burial was in the local cemetery.

DOCTORS IN SERVICE

The number of physicians in Kingston and Ulster County, who are entering the armed forces of our country, brings to full realization the extent of the war's drain on that profession. Competent surgeons and physicians are needed to keep the men fit for the battles that must be fought on land, in sea and air.

With the call of these doctors to the military service, the burden of work on those who remain at home will be doubled. Many authorities are now advising the public as to how it may help these doctors perform their job with maximum efficiency under difficult conditions:

First, don't ask your doctor to make a house call if you are able to go to his office. Second, don't call him at inconvenient times unless there is an emergency. Third, when you do see him, don't waste his time in gossip and idle talk. It may be all right to "visit" with the doctor in normal times, but it is definitely a bad practice now.

The standards of American medical care are the highest in the world. During the war, with millions of people working at arduous labor, every possible means of guarding and maintaining these standards must be used. And you can be certain that the doctors will do their part. They will willingly work longer and harder. They know better than anyone else that the preservation of civilian health is absolutely vital to the war effort.

The patient who wastes a doctor's time may, unwittingly, be depriving a person who desperately needs it, of medical attention.

COOPERATE FOR YOUR OWN GOOD

Merchandising organizations have issued much valuable advice on how consumers may help retail stores provide maximum service during the war.

Don't ask for deliveries except when unavoidable. Carry small packages yourself so that truck space may be saved for big packages. Don't make a practice of changing and returning merchandise as that wastes time, effort and materials. Don't insist on unnecessary wrapping and packaging service. The government is requesting retailers and all other business to conserve materials to the utmost.

In short, consumer cooperation can help save tires and gasoline, save scarce materials, promote orderly marketing, and prevent panicky buying and hoarding.

The war has brought some mighty tough problems to the retailers. And he is doing the best he can to solve them. Thousands of merchants in all lines are doing a notable job of consumer service in the face of unprecedented difficulties. Retailers are pushing the nutrition drive. Retailers are working with manufacturers to develop suitable and inexpensive substitutes for priority goods. Retailers have shown the finest kind of cooperation in carrying out the complicated price-control order.

The consumer who does not make unnecessary demands on the retailer he patronizes is actually benefiting himself, and helping to conserve materials and labor needed for war purposes. Retailing has lost thousands of experienced employees to the military services and war industries, and these people cannot be easily replaced. It is doing a remarkably good job in maintaining its high standards under these circumstances.

KAISER'S COAT TAILS

The feud developing between Washington officials and Henry J. Kaiser—in which the officials do most of the feuding, while Kaiser tends to his shipbuilding—gives free and enterprising citizens a pain in the neck. If the opposition to Kaiser is what it seems to be, it presents a strikingly clear picture of the difference between bureaucracy and private enterprise, in spirit and performance.

To an alert public, disheartened by the slow progress of many branches of national defense and eager to get on with the big war job, this West Coast contractor has looked like a new incarnation of the American Spirit dropped from Heaven. He has proved his genius by building the big dams and a lot of other tough jobs that the old-fashioned know-it-alls insisted couldn't be done.

He has the temperament that will tackle anything at least once, and the constructive genius to do impossible things regardless of precedent. He is burning with patriotic energy and eagerness to get on with the war jobs, with more good ideas in a minute than the average government bureaucrat has in a year. Yet instead of playing up to this big man, and riding along on his coat tails, the old fogies try to drag him down.

Such, at least, is the impression given the public by the bureaucrats when Kaiser and his brilliant young assistants are burning up to build greatly needed ships faster than anybody in the world ever built them before.

WHOOPEE

The Census Bureau reports that deaths from whooping-cough are falling off. Back in 1918 the death rate was 17 per 100,000 persons. This may not seem very much, but it is enough.

Much or little, it has been heavily reduced. In 1940 the deaths were only 2.1 per 100,000. Thus mortality from this disease should soon vanish altogether.

Now if the brilliant minds that have been working on abolishing whooping-cough would only turn their attention to suppressing Hitler—the biggest whoop of all!

POLITICAL OATS

Another sign of the times. Glenn H. Taylor, Democratic nominee for the U. S. Senate in Idaho, has just filed his list of expenses incurred in the primary campaign. They included 95 cents for oats and nine dollars for two horseshoeing jobs.

Our grandfathers would see nothing strange about it. If this sort of thing should go on, they would be more at home in our times than we are.

Why the United Nations fight, was told more than 150 years ago by the great Irish orator, Edmund Burke: "When bad men combine, the good must associate; else they will fall one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle."

Congress always under-estimates the willingness of the American people to sacrifice.

Another reason why normal people like the seashore is because it's untidy.

CONTROL OF THE EMOTIONS

The young assistant of a busy physician asked about the non-appearance of one of the patients who had formerly made frequent visits to the office.

"Oh," said the physician, "her sister who is quite ill lives next door to her and she is helping to nurse her. She hasn't the time to come in and see me."

"But what about her 'heart pains' of which she complains?"

"As you know, those are not true heart pains; it is a painful condition but is due to an arthritis of the ends of the ligaments holding ribs to the breast bone. She is so worried about her sister that her own pains are not so important at present."

It would seem that the war is making all of us think less of our pains or worries as we think of the world as a whole, of the men in our fighting forces, and the misery of the conquered peoples. And this thinking of others and what they are up against is making us not only forget our small troubles but willing to do more for others as is reported by physicians everywhere and particularly by psychiatrists or nerve specialists.

Recently Dr. Walter Freeman, Washington, D. C., in Hygeia, the Health Magazine, stated that the human race must be changing, for neuroses (thinking you have an ailment), among the civilian population show a definite drop during war.

"The few bits of news from the captive countries mention the privations and anxieties for the future, but not anything about neuroses. If conditions in those countries are the same as in England, then many neurotic persons are enjoying better health than they were for many years past."

Dr. Freeman states that the harmful factors of the war — fatigue, privation, malnourishment and isolation — actually improve health for various reasons, the first and foremost being the difference between big things and little things. It is the little things of life with their constant provocations that bring us to distraction, whereas we can always find the needed strength within ourselves to face the big or dangerous circumstances.

When there is no choice, we do, or face, the big things automatically, that is naturally or without having to think about it.

Two other reasons why we are more steady in wartime are spiritual organization which gives one a sense that God is watching over him, and self-sacrifice which leads one to enter into useful work to assist the common cause."

Neurosis

Sometimes all that is needed to make a person realize that they are not neurotic, have no neuroses, is to understand it. "GEORGE SPELVIN, AMERICAN AND FIRESIDE CHATS," by Westbrook Pegler

G. A. M. Pegler is repeating himself between boards this week. Mr. Pegler (the G. A. M. stands for God's Angry Man) writes that naughty column of his six days a week, and practically everybody ruminates around until he finds what Mr. Pegler is mad about—also six days a week. Often it's labor, often it's That Man in the White House.

Often it's Harold Ickes, whom Mr. P. calls the "Little Joe (Goebbels of the administration)" in his new book of collected columns. He calls the book "George Spevin, American and Fireside Chats," which doesn't quite parse for me.

But once in a while Mr. P. boils the bitterness out of himself and produces something rather light—indeed sometimes something rather fantastic. Then he has a lot of fun. So do his readers.

This collection runs to the less-anxious columns. It is often funny. It is also very persuasive, and since it has practically none of the well-known Pegler labor columns in it, and for the most part lets That Man alone, even a confirmed liberal could read the book without too much rancor. There are plenty of "digs," but what's a dig when a guy has to earn a good rich living by a daily stint of this sort?

Still, Mr. P. sometimes inserts a doubt in the mind of his reader. Few readers can be expert on all things, as Mr. P. is. But most of us have one or two fields we really know, and when we discover Mr. P. writing not about one of these fields, we begin to wonder about those other departments we are not so familiar with. On page 97 Mr. P. uses Beniamino Gigli as a club with which to beat all singers, and operatic singers in particular.

Mr. P. can shake Gigli through a red-hot sieve for all I care, after Mr. Gigli's career in this country. But Mr. P. grows general and vindictive at the bottom of page 98, and continues so to the end. These statements are based on a truly beautiful ignorance soiced with cute phrases as to look like a wedding cake from Sherry's. At the bottom of page 99 he implies that all male singers are sissies, for example. Turn the page and he says flatly that no singer is an artist; that his function is that of a train caller. Opera is not my dish—indeed, many serious musicians view opera with tolerance at best. But this is not for the reason Mr. P. implies.

Under the orders, which become effective at midnight tonight, Selective Service officers are enabled to seek to induce any worker to take more essential work than that he is now performing.

Four main points in the order were:

1. No employer may dismiss any worker and no worker may leave any job without giving seven days' notice in writing.

2. No person may seek employment and no employer may hire or interview with the intention to hire any person unless that person holds a permit to seek employment.

3. No person capable of working may remain voluntarily unemployed and any person not working full time for a period of two weeks or more can be ordered to take full-time suitable work.

4. All employers must report to employment and Selective Service offices their future labor needs and must fill their current needs through the employment office.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Aug. 31 — Lawrence Spencer, who is employed in Bridgeport, Conn., spent the weekend at his place on the north reservoir boulevard. He expects to get home for a week's vacation some time next month. "Larry" reports plenty of work available in Bridgeport for adults of all ages.

Mrs. Algot Olson has returned to the Olson summer camp after having visited relatives in Brooklyn.

Kingstonians calling at the home of Mrs. Augustus Green last week included Mrs. Robert Secor, Mrs. Loren P. Secor and the Misses Elsie and Geraldine Secor, all of whom formerly made their home in Shokan.

Frank Jones, one of the north reservoir country's most industrious young men, has begun work on the construction of a new home near the residence of Justus North. Mr. Jones has made a driveway from Route 28 up to his hillside building lot.

Charles Duloff, heights farmer and sawmill operator, is searching for soft maple, beech and white birch timber to be used in sawing an order for scoop shovel stock. The scoops will be manufactured at a turning plant which has a government contract to furnish these implements.

Alfred Rose has employment on the construction of a cellar in the neighboring village of West Hurley.

Sunday, September 1, 1895, preaching services were conducted in the Shokan Methodist Church by the Rev. Lewis D. Piper, who was pastor of the church in the old village for several years. The Rev. Mr. Piper, one of the best sermonizers ever assigned to the local charge by conference, later made his home in Clintondale.

Joseph Taylor has returned to New York after having been a guest for one week at the state road home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weeks.

Poughkeepsie residents visiting Shokan during the week-end included Jack Bennett, one of the Bridge City's best known business men, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Volneck who were at the Charles Giles home.

Members of the Olive and Hurley O. S. Baptist Society are making preparations for the three-day, or association meeting, scheduled to take place at the local meeting house the middle of September. Friday several members of the congregation came here and cleaned the church building, mowed the yard, made minor repairs and readied the luncheon pavilion. The workers included Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brooks of Phoenix; Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt Osborn, Athens; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Winchell and Mr. and Mrs. Amasa Slawson of Kingston. The association meeting for generations has been an outstanding social and religious event in Primitive Baptist circles, with elders and laymen from several states coming here for the occasion.

Mead Attacks Agencies

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP)—Senator Mead (D., N. Y.) assailed in the Senate today what he termed the failure of "corporate-minded" government agencies to bring smaller plants into the war production picture. "In New York city alone," Mead declared, "many small plants are idle when their services are needed, and there are from 400,000 to 500,000 unemployed persons, at least 75,000 of them skilled in the construction trades. Why aren't they put to work building planes, tanks and ships?" he asked.

Fire is starting a campaign against tuberculosis, called the "third greatest killer in Ireland," heart disease and cancer taking first and second places.

Management, Already Shy of Experienced Leaders, Cannot Be Expected to Absorb More and More 'Headaches'

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 1—Some day the government at Washington—and particularly Congress—must realize that it cannot just keep adding management headaches day after day and expect management, already short of experienced executives, to carry on efficiently the bigger and bigger job of industrial production required to win the war.

The latest headache is the "renegotiation" of contracts. Because some selfish and narrow-minded business men have abused the profit margin in government contracts, the political demagogues have now forced a reconsideration of all contracts to the point where the 99 per cent of the country's contractors who are patriotic and cooperative are to be subjected to the penalties of an inspection and renegotiation system that has behind it no definite or calculable yardstick for operating a business.

The gravity of this new time-wasting and energy-wasting policy is best illustrated by a telegram which has just been received by every member of the House and Senate, from one of the largest producers of ammunition for the United States Navy, a company that has been in business for more than 10 years and has had a chance to encounter and comply with every form of red tape ever devised. John B. Hawley, Jr., president of the Northern Pump Company of Minneapolis, Minn., telegraphs members of Congress as follows:

"War machinery production has continuously declined since renegotiation law No. 528 was passed on April 28 last. Renegotiation has made all of the efficient fixed price contractors which are the backbone of defense machinery production operate on a cost plus basis, thereby wrecking all normal established procedure so that they can conform to renegotiation board's cost-plus-a-percentage-of-cost rulings."

"All contractors now know that past and present contracts with the United States government are worthless and that they can be destroyed at the whim of any inexperienced local bookkeeper without practical appeal. Industrial leaders know that renegotiation boards are using kid glove methods until after the new tax bill becomes a law and elections are over."

"Contractors are nauseated by continuous audits by inexperienced groups of local auditors wastefully duplicating experienced federal income tax audits, and wasting executive ability which is badly needed to maintain production under adverse conditions such as conscription, labor unions, material shortages, design changes, production schedule changes, etc."

"The manufacturer can only profit after taxes are paid and you can certainly make a tax law limiting war profit to a small percentage after payment of federal taxes. Then the manufacturer has every incentive to finish his contracts in the shortest period of time and at the lowest possible cost."

"Renegotiation forces contractors to diminish shipments so as to maintain high costs or have their contract price cut as soon as they reach peak efficiency. Investigate costs of material under cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts and in government-operated shops compared to net costs to the government on fixed price contracts less income taxes on profit. Then, if you desire to bankrupt the nation and lose the war, keep public law No. 528, thereby placing all war contracts on a cost-plus-a-percentage-of-cost basis."

"This war will require a hundred times as much war machinery as did the last war and if this machinery must be produced on the old cost plus basis under public law No. 528, inflation is inevitable. I was in Germany five years ago, even then their factory efficiency was superb. I have built naval machinery for 10 years. This corporation is the largest private producer of naval ordnance machinery. This telegram is a desperate personal plea on behalf of independent manufacturers operating on fixed price contracts to let us operate efficiently."

Since public law No. 528 was passed the price adjustment boards in the war and navy departments have struggled to devise a formula but though conscientiously attempted, it is an ex post facto action and does not enable a manufacturer to tell either in advance of taking a contract or while he is executing it just where he is coming out. Industry cannot operate under that cloud of uncertainty. The Senate finance committee has under consideration a plan to limit profits after taxes and that's the sensible approach. ## "AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

I wonder how many of the older readers of this column recall the days at the turn of the century when they hid out in the old barn to read the latest issue of their favorite five-cent thriller. Those old days are recalled to mind by a note I received from George O'Neill of this city, a former newspaper man, and like myself, a reader of the Tip Top Library when a boy.

The Tip Top, which was issued weekly was devoted to the adventures of Frank Merrill and his brother, Dick. The books were written by Gilbert Patten, who wrote under the name of Burt L. Standish. George's recollection is that the first Merrill story appeared in print in April, 1896. I have not checked on this date, but I know it was the latter part of the Gay Nineties that the series first appeared.

Other nickel novels that were issued weekly were the Pluck & Luck Library, containing a different tale each week; Young Klondike, relating the adventures of a youth in the Klondike in the days of the great gold rush.

Other nickel libraries I recall are Yankee Doodle, printed during the Spanish-American War, and relating weekly the adventures of a youth in Cuba with the U. S. Army. There was also Nick Carter detective tales as well as Old Sleuth and Secret Service, relating the adventures of Old and Young King Brady, detectives.

There was also a library of humorous stories called Camps, and I also recall the Deadwood Dick yarns written by Edward Wheeler. The Work 'Win contained the adventures of Fred Fernat and were patterned somewhat along the lines of the Merrill stories. There were also the Buffalo Bill stories, and the Frank Reade yarns of a youthful inventor.

I also recall the Diamond Dick and Handsome Harry yarns of the old west, as well as the Liberty Boys of '76 chronically the adventures of a group of youths in the Revolutionary War.

Another old detective hero of the nickel libraries was Old Cap Collier. There are probably some older readers who can add to this list of the books that thrilled us when we were much younger than we are today.

Washington Daybook

Washington — Mohandas Gandhi's personal popularity in this capital is so low he'd have to chin himself to touch bottom, but his influence has brought out one of the most interesting personalities to hit town in a dog's age.

Sidar J. Singh is an Indian textile importer who has lived 17 years in New York. He's president of the India League of America and an ex-member of Gandhi's movement.

Dramatically handsome and built like a varsity tackle, he's visibly affected when he talks of his homeland.

Singh came here to plead for American aid in settlement of the Indian crisis. He's admittedly scared stiff of consequences if India Incidentally, the first champion Jawaharlal Nehru and Gandhi here, and he makes some telling points in asking for understanding.

Japan, Singh reports, has made great headway in India with propaganda deriving the Church-Japan has cleverly hand the theme that the four freedoms are only for white men in Anglo-British minds, and that India will never be freed by Britain.

Failure of Sir Stafford Cripps' mission appeared to give point to the Jap claims, as a wave of "So what?" defeatism swept India after Cripps returned home.

The cobbler, the peasant, the little shopkeeper—they do not see how fatal a Jap victory would be. Singh says passionately, "They only see that another hope of independence is smashed. So they say 'Why fight for freedom we haven't got?'

Jailing of Gandhi and Nehru plays into the Japs hands, Singh says. And they are the only Indian leaders who could counteract the Jap propaganda but they can't do it from jail. Singh explained the Gandhi-Nehru demands on Britain not as blackmail but as a move forced by the Indian masses. Jap agents would claim they were "selling out." The British had they not demanded immediate action.

Singh bitterly assails any suggestion that Gandhi and Nehru are pro-Axis. They are inviolably democratic, he says, and points to Nehru's record as the first world leader to denounce Jap aggression in China, the Italian move in Abyssinia and the fascist attack on Spain in support of his claims. In contrast, he points out that L. S. Amery, British secretary for India, defended the Jap invasion of Manchuria in the House of Commons in 1931.

Singh brought with him a plan for the U. S. State Department which he says Gandhi would accept. It's simple. First, gentleman's agreement that the veto power of the Indian viceroy will not be used during the war. Second, a guarantee of Indian freedom after the war.

Third, replacement of the present government council by a interim government of 15 members, five to be Indian Nationalists and five to be named by the viceroy.

"America should insist on a settlement of the Indian crisis," Singh says. "America has a big stake in it. If India is allowed to go by default to fight for people have nothing to fight for. American boys now playing in the streets will grow up to find the country still fighting Japan."

DRESSING TO SIT IN BEST SEATS AT WEDDING

As a rule relatives of the bride and bridegroom dress more elaborately at the wedding than do other guests. However, this applies particularly to members of the immediate families, which is certainly not the relationship suggested in the following letter:

"My husband and I are invited to sit in best seats at an afternoon church wedding and not however, invited to any reception afterward. Perhaps there is none, I don't know. We would like to have you tell us whether we have to dress up front in church, under such circumstances."

In further answer, you naturally would wear a dress which you think becoming. Otherwise both you and your husband should properly wear clothes suitable for Sunday service in church.

Who Invites Bridegroom's Family?

Dear Mrs. Post: I know my future in-laws but not very well. Mother has never met them. It is more than likely that they will be able to come here for the wedding. Nevertheless they should be invited. We are not sending engraved invitations. Mother and I are inviting verbally those who live near by, and are writing notes to others at a distance. Our question is: Should mother write the note to my fiancé's mother or should I write it? Also when immediate families cannot be present at a wedding should they be sent announcements?

Answer: Your mother should write the note of invitation to the bridegroom's mother. It would be proper and certainly please your future mother-in-law if you enclose or write a separate note, saying how disappointed you will be if none of the family is able to come.

Boutonnieres on White Coats

Dear Mrs. Post: When the men in the wedding wear white coats, may they wear red carnations, or other colored boutonnieres? White flowers look more wedding like, but they certainly would not show off to advantage on the white coats.

Answer: No, please not. Wear a leaf or two behind the white flower, against which it will show plainly.

Sugar Tongs

Dear Mrs. Post: Are sugar tongs necessary when serving lump sugar, or is it permissible to use the fingers?

Answer: Sugar tongs should be used to serve others; fingers for yourself—if you like.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "DO YOU KNOW YOUR ABC'S IN MANNERS?" Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs.

We Can Win the War

We can win the war—our side, America and her allies. How are we to win, and when? We know not, but we are convinced we can and will win in the end.

America may win because she has the best army or the most formidable navy or the most superior air force.

She may win because she has the greatest food supply or because she possesses the most money.

Victory may be hers because she is the last of the great world powers to enter the conflict, and therefore she is fresher and less weary than the others that have carried the load so much longer.

It may be that America's geographical position gives her strategic advantage and guarantees her success.

Any of these reasons may lift our morale, for they are plausible arguments, and anything that deepens our hope and increases our confidence is to be encouraged.

Father—Isn't it time you were entertaining the prospect of matrimony?

Daughter—Not quite, Dad. He won't be here until 8 o'clock.

SEPTEMBER BREEZES . . . To be the man of the hour, first learn to make every minute count . . . It's now up to every mother's son and every father's daughter . . . It's easy to be wise—afterward . . . He who knows but one business, doesn't know that . . . A fool and his money are invited to places . . . The best investment in the world today is War Bonds . . . The best place to find a helping hand is at the end of your arm . . . We can't lick the dictators of Europe with one hand behind our back . . . There is said to be a shortage of fats, with no reference to slacks . . . Keep your eyes open before marriage, and half shut afterwards . . . Buy more War Bonds and give the Axis the axe.

Our War Mothers

When the rolling drums are silenced, and the last shot has been hurled, and the tents of war are folded, and the flags again are furled; On the scroll of unsung heroes who with courage bravely bore, In dedication to their country, the crushing woes of war; Will be written in blazoned letters by Time's immortal hand, A glowing, deathless tribute to the Mothers of our land.

Robert—If I'm the first fellow you ever kissed, how do you know I kiss well?

A bachelor is a man who never makes the same mistake once.

A man who had wanted a parrot for years noticed a sign recently in another city on a pet shop, "Bankruptcy Sale." He entered and spied a gorgeous parrot. When the auctioneer put it up for sale, he began bidding. Higher and higher went the bids, but he finally won out. Suddenly, it occurred to him that the parrot might not be the talking kind. Holding up the cage to the auctioneer, he demanded:

Man—Say, does this bird talk?

Parrot (chattering)—Who the dickens do you think was bidding against you all the time?

INDUSTRY . . . Far too many persons regard industry only as a way to make a living . . . They work because they have to do so . . . Industry can and should be something far finer and better—a way to make a life . . . And work can be the finest contribution made by that life . . .

Proud Mother—They promoted my son Jerry for hitting the sergeant. They made him a Court Martial.

When a fellow says his home town is no good, you can rest assured he does not amount to much there.

East-Sider Provides His Own First Rosendale Blood Donors Flashes of Life

Dave Hensler, 56, Steps From Obscurity to Role of Hero; Has Tons of Metals

By DON WHITEHEAD

New York, Sept. 1 (Wide World)—In the steaming, teeming lower East Side where the tenement washlines flutter their pennants of poverty, gnarled little Dave Hensler is a one-man blitz in the government's scrap metal collection drive.

For the second time in his 56 years, Dave has stepped from the obscurity of New York's millions to become a hero. He's getting his picture in the papers and someday the government then may list Dave's name among those who deserve special mention for unselfish service.

Dave has collected enough scrap metal from dusty halls, cobwebbed basements and littered back alleys to build several medium tanks. He's gathered tons of the stuff.

The American Industries Salvage Committee, an organization of iron and steel interests working closely with the War Production Board, credits pint-sized Dave with doing the biggest scrap collection job of any individual on his records, even though he weighs a bare 105 pounds and stands less than five feet tall.

The committee wants Dave regarded as an example to the American farmer. If every farmer in the nation would do what Dave has done, the committee says they could collect enough scrap metal to make 200,000 medium tanks. It has been estimated there are about 400,000 tons of scrap metal on American farms.

Hensler isn't exactly a farmer. He wouldn't know what a subsidy looks like. He's never seen a field of clover in bloom or heard the wind rustling in a corn field or seen a herd of cattle grazing. His horizon always has been hemmed in by sky scrapers.

In Flint-Like Soil

His garden patch at the corner of Broome and Lewis streets wouldn't meet the department of agriculture definition of a farm but Dave has made squash and beans and peas and corn grow in flint-like soil that gets only a few minutes of sunshine each day before being shadowed by the towering tenements.

"We've got to do a lot more hustling," Dave said. "Trouble is, people don't want to do a little work without being paid. I'm not getting paid. I just want to do all I can for my flag and my country. We got to have more muscle and brain work."

That was a long speech for Dave but the little fellow and his friends know this is a war of the people and as Dave said "We got to put our shoulder to the wheel." Dave was born over by the East river, next to the youngest child in a family of 17 children. He didn't bother a great deal with school.

"They didn't have schools then like they do now," Dave said. "There wasn't any playgrounds so we just played hooky."

He was working in a flour mill over by the river when he first stepped into the glare of public acclaim some 35 years ago. A big fellow fell off a barge into the East river and Dave swam out and hauled him in. It was the third time he had saved a life.

"Then they gave me a medal," Dave said. "I went up to city hall and the mayor made a speech. That was the first time I ever had my picture in the papers. But for the life of me I can't remember that mayor's name."

After that Dave went back to his East river haunts to work at odd jobs. With the years he became the neighborhood handyman. A building was razed at Broome and Lewis and a bank gave Dave Hensler squatter's rights. He planted a garden plot and built himself a crude little shack on it.

Gradually the Hensler lot became something of a neighborhood institution. For a lot of 50 cents a month, Dave let mothers park their baby carriages in a little shed. He began to rent carriages at 25 cents an hour. The fees put up a wash line was 25 cents. The children came to play in front of his shack.

"The kids have made this their playground," Dave said. "I like to see them. It helps keep me young and it keeps them off the streets and out of trouble."

When the war came along, Dave volunteered as an air raid warden. He keeps his white helmet in his shack adorned by pictures of President Roosevelt and General MacArthur.

Twice a week he attends classes for wardens and whenever there is a blackout, Dave is out in his white helmet helping direct traffic and getting lights out.

Dave's friendship with the neighborhood children is the secret of his scrap metal collection. They call themselves Victory Scouts and scour the buildings for discarded iron bedsteads, springs, automobile wheels, pipe, nuts, bolts, old boilers and anything made of metal.

"It's a lot of work," Dave says, "but it's worth it."

ABC OF THE RUBBER SITUATION

Buna S: Heavy-Duty Synthetic

NOT RUBBER, BUT IT'LL DO—In this synthetic rubber factory, a workman takes sheets of rubber-like material from a processing machine. It's man-made, and has many of the qualities of rubber. U. S. may depend heavily upon such products to supplement crude rubber stocks.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Wide World Features Writer
Washington—The government is building rubber production plants under a program which calls for the making of three kinds of synthetic, Buna S, butyl and neoprene.

The goal set by the War Production Board for these plants is an output at the rate of 800,000 tons by the end of 1943. Of this 700,000 tons would be Buna S, 60,000 tons butyl and 40,000 tons neoprene.

Buna S gets the No. 1 ranking because it is rated the best and most feasible type of synthetic for use in heavy duty tires needed for military vehicles and essential civilian trucks. Tires can be made of Buna S alone, or of Buna S combined with crude or reclaimed rubber.

Equipment Is No. 1 Problem
Although materials for synthetic plant equipment are scarce, there are plenty of raw materials for the making of Buna S. The key ingredient of Buna S is a chemical compound called butadiene which can be obtained from such normally abundant U. S. products as grain, petroleum, molasses, coal, potatoes and other starchy vegetables.

Buna S is made by combining butadiene (75 per cent) and styrene (25 per cent). The latter is a chemical compound derived from coal tars. One way of doing it is to combine the butadiene and styrene under pressure in a soap solution. A chemical reaction takes place, molecules of butadiene and styrene becoming joined in a milky emulsion.

Brine or acid is poured into the emulsion, and the molecules become granular particles of artificial rubber called Buna S "crumbs." The soap and brine are washed off the crumbs, which are dried and then put through a mill. They come out as sheets of synthetic rubber.

The butyl process is less complicated but the product doesn't stand up so well under heavy tire duty. Butyl tires, however, have given fairly satisfactory service for 10,000 miles at speeds below 40 miles an hour. An objection to butyl has been the difficulty of making it adhere to natural rubber in tire carcasses. Technicians say it makes an excellent inner tube.

Neoprene has long been rated a high quality special rubber, particularly resistant to the effects of sunlight, oils, gasoline and chemicals. A lot of it is being used for special military purposes such as self-sealing airplane gasoline tanks.

Thiokol for Recaps
Besides the three now included in the government's emergency program, there are other promising types of synthetic being manufactured by private plants. Among these are Thiokol, Buna N and Flexon.

Thiokol is especially adapted for tire recapping. Some technicians believe it might be the answer to the problem of keeping tires going until the output under the government's program becomes big enough to care for ordinary cars as well as war-tail transportation. One advantage of Thiokol is that its manufacture requires a relatively small amount of critical plant equipment.

Buna N is an oil-resistant rubber suited for special military and civilian needs. Flexon is a new material of the butyl type, made from petroleum derivatives by methods involving dry ice.

Will synthetic rubber give as satisfactory service as natural rubber? Technicians say synthetic is preferable in some respects such as being impervious to corrosives, but generally speaking the synthetic tire is not yet as good as one made of crude rubber. Internal heat produced

Bill Simmons Will Pitch Against Puerto Ricans Wednesday at Stadium

Local Club to Attempt Second Straight Win Over Island Team; Game at 8:45

The crack Puerto Rican stars will be the mid-week attraction at the municipal stadium Wednesday night when they return here to meet the Kingston Recreation for the second time this year. Game time is slated for 8:45 o'clock sharp.

Manager Joe Hoffman has assigned the veteran Bill Simmons for the pitching mound again. Bill blanked the Ricans with four hits the last time out and now hopes to repeat this performance. Juan Santaella, who faced the Reds before, is expected to hurl against the club again.

This will be the first of two outstanding exhibition games for the local fans this week. Following the Rican clash at the Stadium Wednesday night, the Mount Vernon Scarlets, members of the Metropolitan Baseball Association, will be in town next Saturday night at 9:15 o'clock.

"It was a big disappointment to local fans Saturday night," said Manager Hoffman, "when Al Cucinello and Roy Tarr weren't in the lineup. However, the two New Yorkers thought that we had cancelled the game and therefore didn't bother to make the long hike up here." The local pit went on to add that Cucinello and Tarr will be here Wednesday night.

Although the front office of the Recreation hasn't released any definite information, it may be that both Tommy Maines and Dick Whitesell will be unable to play for the duration of the current campaign. The two outfielders are expected to report for the opening football drill at Syracuse University early Thursday morning. More news of this is forthcoming.

Kingston defeated the Puerto Ricans the last time they were here by 1 to 0 in a grueling pitchers' battle. The Ricans surely will be out to even things up Wednesday night at the uptown ball orchard. On the other hand, the Reds hope to add victory number two over the outstanding ball club.

With good weather for the game, one of the best crowds of the season should witness this ball game. Fans who saw these two clubs in action before are coming out again, besides many who didn't see the Ricans in action before.

Puerto Rico will probably have Castro, Rey, Santana and Rivero in the infield again with Anriva, Polanco and Diaz operating on the picket line. Santaella and Lude are the probable battery starters.

In this game the Reds will try to put another long winning streak together. They won last Saturday night against the Waterbury Brasscos, but face a much bigger menu Wednesday night.

Sports Shorts

New York, Sept. 1 (AP)—Columbia's football prospects, already low because of heavy graduation and military losses, received another jolt today when Captain-elect Joe Signal, veteran end, announced that he was enrolling in a dental college and would not be a Lion student this year.

Los Angeles, Sept. 1 (AP)—Blind Tom, eh? Umpire Bill Doran of the Pacific Coast League received a perfect vision rating in passing his Navy physical examination. He is off to San Diego for training.

Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 1 (AP)—New Mexico University suggested to its football opponents today a mutual agreement against scouting of games this fall.

George White, director of athletics, said the move was made in the interest of economy during the national emergency, but added: "We think it would be a good idea and that football would be around. Now is a good time to start it."

Pitt Panthers Will Feel Sting of Defeats Again

De-Emphasized Policy Goes On; Few Will Answer Initial Gridiron Call

Pittsburgh, Sept. 1 (AP)—Pitt's once proud and magnificent Panthers will keep right on playing their football for the fun of it in 1942.

It's a bitter pill for alumni accustomed to those conquering Panther eleven, but it is one they must take for the fourth straight year. They knew it was coming in 1939, when Athletic Boss Jimmy Hagan intimated strongly the game no longer would be "big business" at Pitt, culminating in the resignation of the Panthers' famed ringmaster, Jack Sutherland.

Significant of this de-emphasized policy as the new gridiron season approaches are:

1. Pitt probably won't have more than 40 boys out for football—one of the smallest squads in the school's history.
2. While many schools have signified intentions of using freshmen to offset material shortages, Pitt will not unless absolutely necessary. "It was a good rule before the war and it should be a good one now," declares Hagan.
3. Only 14 players remain from last year's first-string squad. Gone are "Special Delivery" Edgar Jones, and Ralph Fife.
4. Pitt will continue to play "over its head." The Panthers lead off with Minnesota's Golden Gophers, at a date normally reserved for a "breather" opponent, and beyond that, all eager to twist the Panther tail, are such "toughies" as Southern Methodist, Duke,

Tennis Stars Get Down to Serious Work in National

Promising Third Round Matches Are on Tap; Segura, Schroeder Scheduled Today

By GAYLE TALBOT
New York, Sept. 1 (AP)—The National Tennis Championships began to get down to cases at Forest Hills today, and after nearly a week of extremely boresome competition it was about time.

A couple of promising third-round matches were on tap. In one, Sidney Wood, Jr., the veteran New Yorker who won a Wimbledon Championship a decade ago in short pants, ran into Aljo Russell, champion of the Argentine.

In the other, Harris Everett, former University of North Carolina star, faced Pancho Segura, the jitterbug from Ecuador.

Only two other men's singles were scheduled. Ted Schroeder, Jr., the tournament's top-seeded star, playing James Evert of Chicago, and Seymour Greenberg, the National Clay Court Champion, meeting Robert Smid of Chicago.

The Wood-Russell affair looked like a toss-up. Wood, once one of the game's supreme stylists, had made a determined enough comeback this summer to be second-fifth among the domestic players. Russell proved himself in winning the only match he has played from Bob Falkenberg, the National Intercollegiate Champion.

Segura's bout with Everett promised observers their first real opportunity of studying the popular little visitor. Pancho's first and second round victims, Ensign Ronald Edwards and Eduardo Buse, would have had difficulty getting into the tourney in normal years.

Two players, William Talbert of Cincinnati, and Lieut. Gardner Mulloy of Jacksonville, already have won their third round matches. Talbert triumphed at the expense of Vincent Paul of New York yesterday, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4, while Mulloy scraped through against Tom Brown, Jr., of San Francisco, 6-0, 6-3, 4-6, 5-7, 6-1.

Only one seeded competitor among either the men or women was missing as the sixth day of play began. This was Mrs. Patricia Canine, Todd of New York, the sixth seeded woman player, who was eliminated by Mrs. Madge H. Vosters of Lansdowne, Pa., 1-6, 6-3, 9-7.

Mrs. Vosters is the same tall, determined blonde who gave Jim Falkenberg a trimming the other day.

Lincoln, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska's football outlook has brightened with the announcement of the expected return of Bob McNitt, 225-pound tackle, who has been engaged in defense work in the West Indies.

Second Nat Deal

It was the second deal of the day for the Senators, who earlier had released Roy Cullenbine to the New York Yankees for cash. Cullenbine was acquired as outfield insurance following Tommy Henrich's enlistment in the Coast Guard. He also will be eligible for the World Series.

The Newsom transfer to Brooklyn will make the third time in a Dodger uniform for the big right-hander who loves nothing better than the spotlight. He came up as rookie in 1929 and immediately won a $25 prize offered by Manager Robinson for displaying the best control in 25 pitches at a special target.

Two weeks later he was in the minors because of wildness. He failed to stick again in 1930 and soon began his moving around among St. Louis, Boston, Washington and Detroit in the American League.

Best In 1940

His best year on a won and lost basis was 1940 when he helped Detroit with the American League pennant with 21 victories and only five defeats. That fall he defeated the Cincinnati Reds twice in the World Series but lost to Paul Derringer, 2 to 1, in a third game which came with only one day's rest and less than 24 hours after the death of his father.

In 1938 he equalled the American League record by fanning six consecutive batters, turning the trick at the expense of the New York Yankees.

This year he won 11 and lost 17 in the seventh place Senators.

Standing in the back row in the usual order are Rocky Maxon, Claude Markle, Jr., Joe Shattan, Rod Sagendorf and Frank Cashin.

Dodgers Purchase Bucky Newson for September Drive

Veteran American Hurler Comes Back to Brooks; Has Won 11 and Lost 17 This Year

New York, Sept. 1 (AP)—Brooklyn's two-tone baseball ensemble of Leo Durocher and Larry MacPhail becomes a trio with the arrival of Louis Norman (Bobo) Newsom, one of the American League's most traveled and articulate pitchers.

Newsom, who has played for 13 clubs in eight leagues, became a Dodger yesterday just 12 hours before the World Series player deadline and less than 24 hours after Manager Durocher publicly announced he wasn't worried about the St. Louis Cardinals, now only three and a half games in back of the Dodgers.

In return for Newsom the Washington Senators acquired cash and Jack Kraus, a husky southpaw Brooklyn farmhand spending the summer at Montreal.

Stretch Drive to Start For Cards and Dodgers

Neyland Satisfied With Army Squad

Gridders Will Engage Giants, September 12

From all indications Col. Bob Neyland is quite satisfied with his All-Army gridders who are holding daily practice sessions in New Haven, Conn., in preparation for the big football clash against the New York Giants of the National Football League.

The All-Army gridiron greats will meet the Giants at the Polo Grounds in New York city on Saturday afternoon, September 12, in the seventh annual All-Star game for the benefit of Army Emergency Relief and the Herald-Tribune Fresh Air Fund.

Mal Stevens, former New York University coach, has visited the squad quite frequently since he took up headquarters in New Haven and has remarked, "They really look great. They remind me of the All-Stars that I coached in 1940. That was the only time I ever saw a team that really pitched in from the first with the idea of winning. The first off on this squad is that some of the bigger names have gone back to their stations while others less heralded are playing in their places. The Colonel (Neyland) and that's the only kind of players he'll have any truck with."

Of the 26 remaining games left the Brooklyn players Boston four and Philadelphia seven. In other games the Dodgers play the Cards twice, Giants four times, Cincinnati four, Pittsburgh four and the Cubs one. On the other hand the Redbirds must tangle with the Giants in three games, Cincinnati five, Pittsburgh four, Chicago four, Boston three and Philadelphia four.

The coming week-end and the week to follow may go a long way in deciding the eventual winner of the National League bunt. Saturday the Dodgers invade the Polo Grounds for a single game and then a double-header on Sunday with Mel Ott's rampaging ball club. Meanwhile, the Cardinals will be in Cincinnati for a single game Saturday and another single Sunday.

Next Monday, Labor Day, the Dodgers go to Boston for a twin-bill while the Cardinals will be in Pittsburgh to play Frankie Frisch's troublesome ball club in two outings. Next Tuesday the Dodgers entertain Pittsburgh in the first game of the last western invasion at Ebbets Field.

St. Louis plays the Giants at the Polo Grounds on Wednesday. Brooklyn gets back into action next Thursday as the Chicago Cubs come to Ebbets Field. Next Friday is the big day when the Cards and Dodgers open a two-game series at Ebbets Field. Single games are listed for Friday and Saturday.

It is safe to say that the Cardinals still have a big job on their hands before they leave their home grounds in St. Louis. The two games in the Mount City against the Giants may mean a lot even though the Giants have been duck soup for the Redbirds all year.

Powers Is Charged With Murder

said to have been due to the milkman who, wondering why there was no demand for milk, stuck his head in the door Monday morning and called out, "Where is Joe?" The answer came from some where in the house that "Joe doesn't live here any more."

The son, Irving Powers, was notified and went to the farm, when his father told him what had happened and said that he would not surrender.

Corporal Norman Baker and Trooper Andrew Klein of New Palitz were notified and went to the scene, but when they met with Powers refusal to come out of the house and saw the difficulty of dislodging the armed man, they called up the Highland station of the state police.

Sergeant E. J. Hulse, Troopers James Benson and Troopers Linn Baker and Edgar Crosswell of the B. C. I., responded to the call and went to the scene of the murder about 1 o'clock.

It was about 2 o'clock that the sheriff's office received word of the affair and Sheriff H. C. Anderson, with Deputy Sheriffs Herbert Segelken, Clayton Vredenburg and District Attorney N. Le Van Haver joined the state troopers which were surrounding the farmhouse.

All during the afternoon the house was bombarded with gas bombs until it became so filled with gas that officers, who had taken position close up against the house for protection against possible shots from the gun with which Powers was armed, found themselves almost overcome from gas which was seeping out from inside.

During the afternoon Troopers Klein and Benson, wearing gas masks, made their way into the cellar and were able to see the bodies lying there, covered with boards and an old blanket. Finally, with every window in the house broken by bombs and bullets, and the last room filled with gas, Powers made his way down the stairs and appeared at the front door, still carrying the shotgun.

It was a tense moment, as there was a question as to what Powers next move would be. Fortunately, for him, he made no threatening move with the gun, as it would have been met with a stream of bullets from officers who were waiting.

Is Sick from Gas

Directly in front of the door as Powers opened it and came out on the porch was Sergeant Hulse, Corporal Baker, Sheriff Anderson and Deputy Segelken and Powers' son, Irving. There was some talk and finally Powers, who was taken desperately sick from the effects of the gas he had inhaled gave himself up.

The sheriff said that Powers remarked, "I ain't mad at you fellows; I don't want to shoot anybody." He said that he could have shot several of the officers during the day, adding that on three occasions he had been tempted to shoot at Deputy Herbert Segelken and once had "drawn a bead" on him.

Shortly after Powers had surrendered, Deputy Sheriffs Keates Young and Edgar Finn arrived with an added supply of ammunition and tear gas. The supply on hand was running low, and expecting that the siege of the house might continue for a considerable time longer, Sheriff Anderson had sent for a further supply. To do so it had been necessary to hunt up the nearest telephone, as the sheriff's cars are not equipped with two-way radio facilities.

Although Powers was not questioned at any length Monday evening, he talked rather freely after his arrest. He told of coming to the farmhouse Friday morning and having dinner there. Later, toward evening, it was understood, a heated argument arose. Powers and the Neffs being outside the house at the time. Powers is quoted as saying that his sister, Mrs. Neff, threatened him with a kitchen knife and that he pointed the gun at her, when it was discharged. The load tore off a portion of Mrs. Neff's arm and then passed through her chest.

Her husband, according to the story, started to run toward the barn, when Powers called "Don't run, Joe, come back." Powers meaning to shoot over his head, but that the shot went low and the charge tore through the top of Neff's head.

After the shooting Powers dragged the two bodies into the cellar, where he covered them with boards and a blanket.

After Powers had surrendered Monday evening the bodies were removed from the cellar and taken in charge by Coroner Jesse parlors in Wallkill an autopsy was performed Monday night by Dr. J. S. Taylor and Dr. C. B. Van Gaasbeek.

Although no details were learned as to the basis of the argument which preceded the shooting, it is believed to have arisen from the fact that at one time Powers owned the farm on which the tragic event took place. It is said that he was unable to keep up payments on the mortgage, held by his brother-in-law, Neff, and about a year ago lost the property. Powers recently has had employment at a limestone quarry at Accord.

After the gas had cleared from the farmhouse Monday sufficiently to allow the officers to enter, they found upon an ice box on top of which lay a kitchen knife with a worn down, thin blade about seven inches in length. On the top of the cardboard box was written in lead pencil, "This is the knife that started the trouble."

Also on top of the icebox lay several slips of paper with addresses of persons and the request to "please notify," to which Powers name was signed. They read: Charles Chantre, Sherman Avenue, Hawthorne, N. Y.; Neff's son-in-law. They will get the insurance policies and take care of Neff.

No. Sir, No Trinidad! New York, Sept. 1 (AP)—An offer of a job in Trinidad at $10,000 a year wasn't to be laughed off, so an engineer in Rockefeller Center took it. Eight months later he was back. He'd had enough of Trinidad. Not even $25,000 a year would tempt him back. His draft board called him and now he's back in Trinidad. Salary, $50 a month.

New York, Sept. 1 (AP)—Leading stocks, with scattered exceptions, displayed a distinct lack of recovery power in today's market.

While pressure was non-existent from the start—the ticker tape frequently was at a standstill—declines of fractions to around a point were the rule near the fourth hour.

Some blamed buying timidity on the day's cloudier war news from Egypt and Russia although yesterday's market virtually ignored the more cheerful battle bulletins. In addition, bullish contingents still were disposed to move carefully pending details of the administration's proposed attack on the high cost of living and completion of the tax program.

Commodities and bonds were uneven.

Stocks in the backward column during the greater part of the proceedings included: Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, United Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennecott, Pan American Airways, du Pont, Westinghouse and U. S. Gypsum. Occasional plus marks were exhibited by Great Northern, Montgomery Ward, American Calt, Texas Co. and Western Union.

In the curb a wide assortment of normally active issues sold at Monday's levels and others never were traded. Slipping at intervals were Cities Service, American Cyanamid "B," Mesabi Iron, Pennroad, N. J. Zinc and Pennsylvania Central Airlines.

Quotations by Morgan Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 60 Beaver street, New York city, branch office, 48 Main street, R. B. Osterhoudt, manager.

Grade School Registration Is Less Than Last Year

In New Jersey

Figures on High School and Myron Michael School Are Not Ready Today

School bells rang today in Kingston, marking the close of the annual summer vacation, with a decrease in registration in the grammar schools of approximately 65 from the number who registered at the opening of the fall term in 1941.

The total registration in the grade schools at noon today was 2,284, as compared with 2,347 in 1941.

Registration figures in the Kingston High School and the Myron J. Michael School were not available at the time this was written.

It is expected that both the Michael School and the high school will show a decrease owing to the fact that the schools in Kingston opened a week before Labor Day instead of the day after the holiday as has been the custom for years.

Schools opened a week earlier this year and it is planned to give a longer period of vacation at the Christmas holidays. This step is being taken to conserve fuel.

The registration in the grade schools follows:

School No. 1	80
School No. 2	244
School No. 3
